

WHY SOCIAL WORK AT ALGOMA U?

Algoma University's four-year Bachelor of Social Work degree is a unique professional program, different from other university programs found across the province. Our social work faculty are committed to a hands on learning experience where students are able to establish a personal relationship with their professors. This fosters a very intimate and interactive learning environment. Algoma University's Bachelor of Social Work program prepares students for generalist social work practice with individuals, families, groups, organizations, communities, and societies. Given Algoma University's location in Northern Ontario in Sault Ste. Marie, and our special mission to cultivate cross-cultural learning between aboriginal communities and other communities, our social work program has a specific focus on multi-cultural social work in and with northern, rural, remote, Indigenous, and Franco-Ontarian communities. Graduates of our program will be prepared to practice anti-oppressive social work at the entry level with diverse populations in a Canadian context.

4th Year Field Practicum

In the fourth year of the social work program, students will participate in a field practicum. Students will perform a social work role at an organization for a total of 700 hours. The field practicum allows students the opportunity to put their lessons into practice, and to enhance and refine their social work skills.

COURSE HIGHLIGHTS

Students enrolled in our program will examine a variety of topics and will understand how northern communities significantly differ from other urban communities in regard to health services, family and child welfare, and the social welfare system. Our graduates will understand crisis intervention and how to deal with victims of abuse, including those who were affected by the residential school system in Canada. Unlike any other Ontario university, Algoma University is situated on the Shingwauk Indian Residential School Site and offers special lectures and guest presentations from residential school Survivors. Many fellow classmates may in fact be Survivors. This provides our students with a unique learning experience, and the opportunity for students to better understand First Nations' oppression, colonization, and self-determination.
